Lifeline Wriststrap Personal Help Button

Enjoy the peace of mind that comes with knowing help is available at the push of a button

At less than ½ an ounce and weighing only half as much as other medical alert buttons, this Personal Help Button offers a variety of options and benefits that fit your lifestyle, all without getting in the way. It is worn on an adjustable washable elasticized wriststrap.

How you'll benefit:

- You can wear it in the shower, where falls often occur, because it is waterproof. You can use it to call for help from anywhere in or around your home, at any time. Increased peace of mind for you and your loved ones
- Confidence to live independently and safely in your own home

Communicator Options:

Cordless Phone

Basic Communicator

It is important that you and/or your caregiver consider the following information when choosing an appropriate wearing method for your personal help button.

These wearing methods are common throughout the medical alert service industry.

The wrist style of button is like wearing a watch which normalizes the experience for many people.

Wrist Styles – The Slimline Wristband is worn around your wrist. In situations where the user's arm that is not wearing the Wristband becomes immobilized (ie. due to stroke or arm being trapped under a heavy object), there is a risk that the user will be unable to press the button. If this is a concern for you, you may wish to consider the neck cord style of personal help button and/or the AutoAlert.
